The problem is not only that the masses must produce, but they must also consume what they have produced

Sure, boss, they gotta consume

They must be occupied either producing or consuming, twenty four hours a day. It makes the control of them a great deal easier.

Right, chief, they gotta be

If you allow them time to think and analyse their situation.....why, my boy, that would be revolution!

Heaven forbid gov

To make sure the masses remain in a condition to be controlled simply, it is advisable to restrict the content and volume of information that is available to them. It is ideal that they are subjected to enormous quantities of trivial and irrelevant data. If you can preoccupy them with ideas of fashion, of status, of titillation, they will fail to notice that they are deprived of information that does, in fact, drastically affect themselves and their environment. This filtering of the news that allows only the most trivial to reach the mass is also an aid to their continuing production/consumption. For instance, the concept of the status symbol forces them to produce more in order to be allowed to consume more.

PAY ATTENTION!

Noble thinking sir

ATTENTION ALL ART LOVERS!

Dear Reader,

By a happy coincidence I find myself in possession of 200,000,000 copies of those eminently desirable animal drawings on the preceding pages, and can therefore afford to offer them to a select group of discerning collectors, or anyone who has 75p for a set of six.

Printed by craftsmen on the finest hand tooled cardboard in choice black ink, to the same huge size as this page, each set bears a photographic replica of the artists signature as a guarantee of authenticity

Yours artistically,

J. Edward Ba
